

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements.....	iv
Table of Contents.....	v
Abbreviations.....	viii
Chinese Abstract.....	ix
English Abstract.....	x
Chapter
1 Introduction.....	1
2 Literature Review.....	4
3 A Descriptive Study of Yami Focus Constructions.....	18
3.1 Introduction.....	18
3.2 Literature Review.....	19
3.3 Focus Constructions.....	23
3.3.1 Agent Focus.....	24
3.3.1.1 Transitivity.....	25
3.3.1.2 Thematic Structure.....	28
3.3.1.3 Vendler event classes – stative, activity, achievement, and accomplishment.....	31

3.3.2 Patient Focus.....	34
3.3.2.1 Transitivity.....	35
3.3.2.2 Thematic Structure.....	36
3.3.2.3 Vendler event classes – stative, activity, achievement, and accomplishment.....	39
3.3.3 Location Focus.....	40
3.3.3.1 Transitivity.....	40
3.3.3.2 Thematic Structure.....	41
3.3.3.3 Vendler event classes – stative, activity, achievement, and accomplishment.....	42
3.3.4 Instrument Focus.....	43
3.3.4.1 Transitivity.....	43
3.3.4.2 Thematic Structure.....	45
3.3.4.3 Vendler event classes – stative, activity, achievement, and accomplishment.....	46
3.3.5 Summary.....	46
3.4 Possible explanations for exceptions and a re-examination of case system.....	48
3.5 Conclusion.....	51
4 Yami Ditransitive Constructions.....	52
4.1 Introduction.....	52
4.2 Focus or Voice? .....	53
4.2.1 Chang’s Analysis (1997) .....	54
4.2.2 Other Analysis.....	57
4.2.3 Yami Voice System.....	58
4.2.4 Comparison of the Yami Voice System and the English Active-Passive Voice.....	60

4.2.5 Arguments against ergative and antipassive analysis.....	63
4.2.6 Summary.....	70
4.3 Ditransitive Verbs.....	70
4.4 Further justification for dative alternation in Yami.....	80
4.5 Limitations and Implications.....	85
4.6 Conclusion.....	87
5 Conclusion.....	88
References.....	91

